you quickly prepare an entire bibliography or reference list in three simple steps: 1. Add references or citations. 2. Choose your citation style. 3. Add the bibliography to your paper. It's that easy! Whether you're just starting your paper, or trying to finish it up the night before it's due, Cite This For Me is here for you, 24/7. Even if you know very little about references, our forms and automatic citation features will guide you through the process and tell you what information is needed. This means less guessing for you and more accurate citations! Nearly any style you can think of is supported by Cite This For Me, including APA format, MLA format, Chicago style, Harvard referencing, Vancouver, and thousands of others. As you make citations, each will appear one after another, so you can keep track of what you've cited and edit anything you may have missed. When you've finished your bibliography, copy and paste it into your paper or, if you upgrade to our fancy Cite This For Me Premium subscription, you can download it to Microsoft Word. On top of downloading citations to Microsoft Word, you will be able to save your work, create as many bibliographies as you want, and work faster with no ads. Premium accounts also let you check your paper for accidental plagiarism, so you can be more confident when turning it in. Cite This For Me is one of the most popular citation tools today. Launched in October 2010, we began with the mission of helping students create perfect citations in a fraction of the time. Since then, Cite This For Me has assisted millions of users across the world including in the United Kingdom, United States, Australia, and beyond. Why Citing Matters Citing isn't something you usually think about, but it's important nonetheless. Without even realizing it, you do it already in your everyday life in little ways. Have you ever said, "I heard on XYZ News that . . ." or "I read in XYZ that those two celebrities are dating," or even "Mom said that you can't do that." By saying where you got your information, you are casually citing a source. We do this because it gives credibility to what we say, but also because it credits the originator of the information and allows others to follow up if they need more information. Formal citing done for papers and projects takes this a step further. In addition to the reasons mentioned above, citing sources in academia provides evidence of your research process and helps you avoid plagiarism. Plagiarism is a word you never want to hear describing your work. You've probably seen headlines in the news and heard stories in school about the negative consequences of plagiarism. It's not good but it is preventable. By visiting Cite This For Me to create citations, you're taking steps to to help avoid this. What Are You Citing?: Source Type Options Do you know what you're citing? Answering this question is usually the first step in creating a citation. On Cite This For Me, you can choose from a list of 30+ source types. It doesn't matter if you're citing a website, book, video, online image, or something totally different. Cite This For Me has you covered. How Does This Work? Immediately start citing by clicking on the website or journal article icon. If you're using another source type, like book, click "More" to see all available options. From there, a form will pop up and show you all of the information you should look for in your source. Remember: the information for sources can vary (e.g. one photo may have a title, another photo may have none), so the forms do not require a completely filled out form to add a reference. You can create a citation at any time and also go back and edit it as many times as you want. To help you save even more time and effort when citing websites, books, and journal articles, Cite This For Me will automatically find reference information and fill out some of the form for you. It sounds like a school myth but it's true! When citing these sources, you start off with a search bar that assists you in finding the source you are referencing. Once you select the proper source from the listed results, you'll be shown what information was and was not found, then taken directly to the form. Here you can confirm, edit, and add any information before adding the reference to your list—you're always in control and have the final say on your references. Choosing a Citation Style Odds are, you've been given a specific citation style to use by your teacher, publication, editor, or colleague. (If not, try MLA format, APA citation, or Harvard referencing as they are the most popular.) Did you know there are literally thousands of citations styles in the world? Fortunately, Cite This For Me has a lot of them! In the navigation bar, click "2. Choose style" to open our citation style search widget and select the right style for you! Citation Guides: Understanding it All Beyond simply creating references or citations, most citation styles have additional guidelines about paper formatting, in-text citations, and other details. Cite This For Me citation guides covers a lot of this additional information, so your paper is more properly prepped and less likely to get points taken off for these details. The citation guides cover several citation styles, but the most popular are APA, Chicago Manual of style, MLA, Harvard referencing, Normas APA and Normas ABNT. Take a Break & Learn: Read Our Blog Citing is great, but it isn't the most exciting thing in the world. If you've cited so much that your eyes are getting crossed, take a break and check out our blog! Finished and Ready to Go Once you have completed your bibliography or reference list, it's time to export it! You can copy and paste your citations from Cite This For Me into your paper, project, or document. If you're looking to export it as a Word Doc, our premium features were designed for you. Premium Cite This For Me Access If you like to save work as you progress, dislike ads, and prefer to download your bibliography as a Word Doc, Cite This For Me premium access is perfect for you! In addition to the perks already mentioned, you'll also gain access to our plagiarism check. It helps you identify any information that may still need a citation created for it. To sum it all up: Cite. Save. Download. Sign up by clicking here. As you write your essays, it's important that you acknowledge the books, journal articles, and any other sources you consult in the course of your research. You do this to show your lecturers what you've read, and most importantly to respectfully nod to the work and ideas of other people; this is a matter of academic integrity. Failure to acknowledge your sources implies a) that you haven't done any background reading or research, and b) that all of the ideas you put forward are your own. If you consult sources and draw on the ideas of other people but don't acknowledge them, it's plagiarism. Always, always cite and reference your sources. The style guide DCU Library recommends for Harvard Referencing Style is Cite Them Right Online Cite Them Right is accessed on and off campus via the A-Z Databases tab on Library Search.
